RECIPE ANALYSIS AND NUTRITIONAL LABEL DISCLAIMER

Energylent Inc. a nutritional consulting company, is committed to its quality assurance program of purchasing current priority support maintenance and priority product support updates for nutritional analysis software. Research shows the Nutritionist V, Nutrition Pro and Esha programs to be three of the most current and reliable nutritional analysis programs available. The database is based on the latest USDA data, manufacturers' data and reference data comprising over 40,000 foods. The labels provided are according to FDA requirements and NLEA rounding rules. However, the knowledge base of the software is under ongoing development and should not be considered complete. The reliability of data fluctuates. Various factors influence the amounts of nutrients in foods. Among these are mineral content of the soil, diet of an animal, fertilizers, genetics of the plant or animal, season of harvest, and processing method. Nutrient data should be viewed and used only as a guide - a close approximation of the true nutrient content for its analysis conclusions. The owner/client is responsible for actual recipe ingredient and preparation accuracy. Energylent Inc. bases the recipe analysis and nutritional panel on the data supplied by the client. Energylent Inc. provides camera-ready copy that is reproducible and resizable. Energylent Inc. is not responsible for any changes done to a label (adding or eliminating numbers, text or fonts) after original artwork is delivered.
